1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background

The Government of Uganda allocates substantial public funds towards the procurement of works, services, and supplies required for the delivery of public services. Many of these items are procured repeatedly by multiple Procuring and Disposing Entities across the country. However, due to differences in market conditions, geographical location, procurement methods, and supplier dynamics, prices for similar goods, works, and services may vary significantly across entities.

Section 8(1)(n) of the Public Procurement and Disposal of Public Assets Authority (PPDA) Act, Cap 205, empowers the Authority, where applicable, to determine the prices of works, services, and supplies that are commonly used by two or more Procuring and Disposing Entities and may be subject to common procurement, and to review such prices as may be necessary. To facilitate this function, there is a need for periodic collection, analysis, and validation of market price information for commonly procured items.

In line with this function, this report presents the findings of a market survey undertaken to develop indicative procurement prices for commonly procured user items in Government. The survey was designed to collect, analyze, and validate current market price data from relevant market sources. The resulting indicative prices are intended to serve as a reference point for Procuring and Disposing Entities during procurement planning, budgeting, and evaluation of bids.

1.2 Objectives of the survey

The main objective of the market survey was to determine indicative procurement prices for common user items in Government based on prevailing market conditions.

1.3 Scope of the Study

The study covered commonly procured goods and non-consultancy services used by Procuring and Disposing Entities across Government. The selection of items was based on a systematic review of previous market price survey reports, focusing on frequently procured supplies essential for day-to-day operations.

The supplies and services covered included Office Stationery and Supplies; Office Furniture and Fittings; Office Uniforms; Engraving Services; Printed Stationery, Designing, Secretarial and Binding Material; Advertising – Newspaper; Advertising – TV and Radio; and Courier Services.

Geographically, the survey covered the Kampala metropolitan area and selected regional cities of Jinja, Mbale, Masaka, Mbarara, Hoima, Gulu, and Arua. to capture variations in market prices across across the Central, Eastern, Western, and Northern regions of Uganda.

2. METHODOLOGY

2.1 Data Collection

A market price survey was conducted to collect prices of common user items across selected urban markets in Uganda. Data collection was undertaken over a three-month period from January to March 2026. A standardized data collection tool was used to collect information on item descriptions and specifications, units of measure, supplier details, and quoted outlet prices. Prices were collected directly from outlets dealing in the identified common user items. The collected data was validated, cleaned, and aggregated to generate average outlet/ cash sales prices for each item in each region.

2.2 Data Analysis

The analysis involved compiling and processing price data collected from outlets across Kampala, Jinja, Mbale, Masaka, Mbarara, Hoima, Gulu, and Arua. For each item, the prices obtained from different outlets were reviewed and an average outlet price was computed to provide a representative market price per location.

The average outlet price reflects the prevailing cash-sale price in the market. However, prices quoted to Government Procuring and Disposing Entities are often higher than ordinary market prices because suppliers incorporate additional costs and risks associated with public procurement contracts. These factors include delays in payment that require suppliers to factor in the cost of credit; taxes such as Value Added Tax (VAT) and withholding tax; transportation costs to delivery points; loading and offloading charges; fluctuations in the exchange rate for imported goods; inflation; seasonal variations affecting locally produced goods; quantities required under the contract; location-related costs such as rent and storage; and market conditions, including situations where a sole supplier has significant pricing power.

To account for these factors, the analysis applied the procurement price determination model developed for PPDA. The model is based on empirical analysis comparing market outlet prices with prices quoted in Government procurement contracts. The findings established that procurement prices are, on average, 24.5% higher than outlet prices.

Accordingly, the indicative procurement price for each item was computed using the following formula:

$$\text{Procurement Price} = \text{Average outlet price} \times 1.245$$

Where;

Average outlet price is the average market price obtained from the survey;
and 1.245 is the procurement price adjustment factor derived from the PPDA procurement price determination model.

For example,

where the average outlet price of an item was UGX 100,000, the indicative procurement price was calculated as follows:

$$100,000 \times 1.245 = \text{UGX } 124,500$$

The resulting procurement prices provide indicative benchmarks for procurement planning, budgeting, preparation of cost estimates, bid evaluation, and assessment of price reasonableness. They are intended to reflect the additional costs and risks typically considered by suppliers when pricing contracts for Government entities. Prices that significantly exceed the indicative procurement prices may require further review to determine whether the variation is justified by the specific circumstances of the procurement.

3. STANDARDIZED INDICATIVE UNIT PRICES

This section presents indicative prices in UGX for commonly procured items for Office Stationery and Supplies, Office Furniture and Fittings, Office Uniforms, Engraving Services, Printed Stationery, Designing, Secretarial and Binding Material, Advertising News Paper, TV, radio and Courier Services.
